Last Will and Testament

(The Real One This Time)

I, Test User (also known as Testy McTestface), currently residing at 123 Test Street, Apt 4B, Test City, CA 90210, being of sound mind and memory (despite what my family might say), do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be my Last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all wills and codicils previously made by me. Yes, this includes that napkin I signed at the bar that one time.

Article I: APPOINTMENT OF EXECUTOR

(AKA The Person Who Gets to Deal With All This)

I appoint Jane Executor as the Executor of this Will. They drew the short straw, but I trust them to handle my affairs without completely losing their mind. If Jane Executor is unable or unwilling to serve (can't blame them if they run), I appoint Bob Backup as alternate Executor.

My Executor shall serve without bond, because if I didn't trust them, why would I pick them?

Article II: PAYMENT OF DEBTS AND EXPENSES

(Time to Settle Up)

I direct my Executor to pay all my legally enforceable debts (yes, even that one), funeral expenses (keep it classy, not trashy), and the expenses of administering my estate. To any creditors reading this: you can't take it with you, but apparently, you can try to collect it after I'm gone.

Article III: ASSET INVENTORY

(What You're Leaving Behind)

For reference, here's a list of my major assets. Yes, I actually had stuff worth mentioning:

Real Estate (The Big Stuff)

- Primary Residence — 123 Test Street, Test City, CA 90210 — Deed: Safe deposit box at Test Bank — Value: $750,000 — Our family home where we made so many memories

Other Assets

- Main Savings Account — Value: $50,000 — Primary savings account
- Checking Account — Value: $5,000 — Main checking account for daily expenses

Other Assets

- 401(k) Account — Value: $125,000 — Work retirement account

Vehicles (Things That Go Vroom)

- 2020 Test Car — 2020 Toyota Camry — VIN ending: 1111 — Value: $25,000 — Main family vehicle

Other Assets

- Cryptocurrency Wallet — Value: $10,000 — Bitcoin and Ethereum holdings

Article IV: SPECIFIC BEQUESTS

(The Good Stuff Goes To...)

1. I give Grandfather's vintage pocket watch to Jane Executor. They called dibs first. This has been in our family for three generations
2. I give Complete collection of programming books to Bob Backup. Bob will actually read these, unlike my kids
3. I entrust my beloved Mr. Whiskers to Sarah Guardian. They're family, treat them as such. I'm leaving $5000.0 for their care because love isn't free. Money for ongoing pet care, Sarah already knows Mr. Whiskers well

Article V: DISTRIBUTION OF RESIDUARY ESTATE

(Everything Else I Forgot to Mention)

I give, devise, and bequeath all of the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate (the junk drawer of my earthly possessions) of whatever kind and wherever situated, to the following lucky winners:

The Main Squad:

- Spouse McSpouseface (spouse): 60% — Congrats on winning the lottery!
- Little Test (child): 20%
- Bigger Test (child): 20%

The Backup Dancers:

If any primary beneficiary kicks the bucket before me (awkward), their share goes to:

- Test Charity Foundation (charity): 100%

Article VI: APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIANS

(Who Gets Stuck With the Kids)

Guardian of the Person:

I appoint Sarah Guardian as Guardian of the Person for my minor children. Yes, Sarah Guardian, I'm talking about you. Thanks for agreeing to raise my spawn (you did agree, right?). They'll be responsible for the day-to-day raising of my kids - the homework help, the teenage angst, all of it.

Guardian of the Estate:

I appoint Sarah Guardian as Guardian of the Estate for my minor children. Same person, because I like to keep things simple. They'll manage the money until my kids are old enough to blow it all themselves.

Alternate Guardian:

If Sarah Guardian suddenly develops a case of cold feet or joins me in the afterlife, I appoint Mike Guardian as alternate Guardian of the Person and Estate. They'll handle both the kids and the cash.

To my kids: be good, or at least be clever about it.

Article VII: FUNERAL AND BURIAL INSTRUCTIONS

(My Exit Strategy)

I prefer cremation (turn me into a decorative urn).

Throw a party instead of crying. I'd prefer celebration over mourning.

Article VIII: DIGITAL ASSETS

(My Online Afterlife)

Delete my browser history immediately. Also, my crypto wallet password is 'password123' (don't judge).

Article IX: PET CARE PROVISIONS

(For My Fur Babies)

Make sure Mr. Whiskers gets his tuna every Tuesday.

Article X: PERSONAL PROPERTY DISTRIBUTION

(The Stuff That Didn't Make the Cut Above)

The detailed list is in the kitchen drawer next to the takeout menus.

Article XI: ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTIONS

(Everything Else I Forgot to Mention)

Please ensure my vinyl collection goes to someone who actually appreciates good music.

Article XII: FINAL MESSAGE

(Last Words, Make 'Em Count)

Thanks for using Killswitch! Hope this will help your family avoid the usual post-death chaos.

Signature

(Time to Make It Official)

IN WITNESS WHEREOF (fancy legal speak for 'I'm signing this thing'), I have hereunto set my hand and seal on this _____ day of _____, 20____. Yes, with an actual pen. Old school, I know.

Test User (Testator — that's you, the person who's gonna die)

Witnesses

(The People Who Can Prove You Weren't Crazy)

The foregoing instrument was signed and declared by Test User to be their Last Will and Testament in our presence. We can confirm they seemed reasonably sane at the time (or at least as sane as someone planning their own death can be). At their request, and in their presence and in the presence of each other (it was a whole thing), we're signing as witnesses. No, we're not getting anything in the will, we checked.

Before me, the undersigned authority (probably a notary who's seen it all), on this day personally appeared Test User, and witnesses, known to me to be the testator (person signing away their stuff) and the witnesses whose names are signed above. Everyone seemed to know what they were doing, more or less. I'm stamping this to make it extra official.
